

Decisive Structural Changes in the world after the UKR conflict

Mochida Kazuhito

Senior Research Fellow of the SSRI

1

The conflict in Ukraine is a turning point in history that is about to change the times for the first time in 500 years.

Rather than dwelling on the fighting of the UKR conflict, it is necessary to identify the split of the United States and the split of the world.

However, those who only see the results of things and do not consider the causes cannot see the truth.

2

The truth of the Ukraine conflict cannot be seen by superficial judgments of right and wrong.

The UKR conflict did not begin with the invasion of the UKR by Russian forces on 22'2.24.

The UKR conflict is different from the Japan and Western reports, in fact the UKR Forces are defeated. At the very least, it will not be able to regain the Russian-occupied territories.

When will this meaningless struggle that only confuses and torments the world end?

3

Transformation of the United States.

① The U.S. nuclear deterrent for Japan has collapsed.

② Russia as a "direct, imminent and continuing threat" but China is "the only competitor" and an economic partner with whom to "coexist peacefully".

4

The irreversible split of the world and the rise of a Greater Eurasian state.

The world is in the process of the rise and rallying of the Greater Eurasian state.

Putin has already made clear at the Eastern Economic Forum in September that he will not rely on Western markets in anticipation of the post-UKR period.

Remarkable event is the dramatic strengthening of relations with North Korea.

5

Russia has reverted from the U.S. two-front strategy to a three-front war, which is the exact opposite.

6

Japan should shift from 3-Front Operations to focus on China.

●Japan's Strategic Environment Undergoes Drastic Changes.

●Basics of Japan's Defense and Taiwan's Defense.

● "Fulfilling Japan's national defense" is the defense of Taiwan.